January 2009

Dear TJ,

I hope everyone had a great holiday season and are ready for bright 2009. We are staying very optimistic and we are seeing some signs of life already in our industry. But our success has always been from your referrals, and we hope we can count on more for the year to come. Alexon Steel Works is up and running, and we are very excited.

I would like to ask all of our recipients to forward this email to one person, and ask them to sign up for the newsletter.

Memory Garden

As you know we were trying to adopt a needy family for the holiday season, but for various reasons it did not work out. But we remained in the giving mood, and donated a "Memory Garden" to a local Hospice in East Mesa. It came out better than expected. Our designers, Erin Olsen and Tracy Hosobe worked their magic as always. Our crews donated their own time and efforts, as well some of our suppliers.

At the Odyssey Hospice in Mesa, the memory garden was set up to honor the lost loved ones of family members. Pavers were engraved with loving sentiments and installed within the new garden. The turn out was more than amazing, and there were few dry eyes during the ceremony.

We really want to thank: Nightscaping, Sprinkler World, and Treeland for their generous donations on this project.

This Scottsdale project took some time, but was well worth it.! This custom home built in the Desert Mountain community turned out to be a masterpiece. We are very pleased to be a part of this project. The backyard had many elements going into it, and took some real creativity to make the whole thing flow. The designers were handed quite a task. We had travertine, veneer stone, ceramic tile, and some rare flagstone to work with. Then we added synthetic turf, a granite counter bbq, an extensive lighting package, and a real rock fire pit. The end result was another stunning job, and most importantly, very satisfied customers.
